

IT C130: PRINCIPLES OF NETWORKED SYSTEMS

Item

Value

Course Description

This course explores system monitoring, device roles, data flow, and foundational security practices. Key topics include network activity using structured observation techniques, analyze network service interactions, and review device-level information to understand normal and abnormal patterns. Through lectures and hands-on labs, students will gain practical experience in interpreting network data to identify potential operational or security concerns. Transfer Credit: CSU.
